

The Shean's English sentence test

워드마스터 2000 day29 ~ day35, 4.16

1. As your experiences with that person grow, the drops accumulate and the pool deepens.
2. He contracted a strange illness that confined him to well-heated rooms for the rest of his life.
3. Children tend to mock their peers to irritate them.
4. The faint scent of pine lingers in the room.
5. I am also convinced that users should be protected from corrupt knowledge by intermediary services.
6. A single rock was hindering the rushing flow of sparkling water.
7. They contaminated the fresh flow of water.
8. The Customer Service department was allocated 60,000 dollars.
9. In the U.S., 25% of all prescriptions from pharmacies contain substances derived from plants.
10. From mankind's point of view, the domestication of maize made available an abundant new source of food.
11. The trees were already awake and embraced by the blue sky.
12. We are obsessed with sports.

13. Koreans use a more elaborate system for addressing each other.
14. They decided to dispense with the old man's services.
15. The young boy started speculating about death.
16. The earthquake was preceded by a loud roar which startled everyone.
17. Netiquette is one of the recent compound words.
18. It is becoming increasingly difficult to implement the agreement.
19. Oppression will surely provoke the people to a rebellion.
20. Sociologists have a desire to be consistent with their words, beliefs, attitudes, and deeds.
21. Living rock cactus has triangular tubercles that overlap in a star-shaped pattern.
22. Nobody was inclined to argue with him.
23. It was obvious that what he recorded was far from the truth.
24. Although durable things are expensive, purchasing them may end up saving money in the long run.
25. I'm not accustomed to making a speech in public.